ABOUT LU-JEAN FENG, MD

The Lu-Jean Feng Clinic is an elegant medical establishment, designed to evoke my ideals of looking good and feeling good from the inside out. Inner and outer harmony are our primary goals for all patients. My support staff of 38 professionals helps patients achieve a very high level of health and wellness and establish realistic goals when contemplating surgery. The principles of Feng shui are upheld throughout our 15,000-square-foot facility, where soft colors, thoughtful amenities and beautiful, wooded views provide the perfect setting for a relaxing visit. Our state-of-the-art operating and recovery rooms, medical skin-care and laser center, acupuncture and massage rooms, and unique Feng Fitness Center, truly make the clinic one-of-a-kind.

THE ULTIMATE IN PRIVACY AND PERSONALIZATION

Since 1999, The Lu-Jean Feng Clinic has been offering the ultimate in patient care and privacy. Dr. Feng reflects on the strict requirements she had: “It can’t look institutional, it must feel warm and cozy and all amenities must be similar to those in a beautiful home. All records must be maintained manually and not electronically, so all information will be strictly confidential. Only one patient will be in the recovery room at any given time, so the entire nursing staff will be totally dedicated to their care. This will be my way of giving back to all of the patients who have traveled so far to see me.”

WHY IS COMMUNICATION SO IMPORTANT AT YOUR PRACTICE?

Communication is extremely important. I am able to speak fluent English and Mandarin.

HOW WOULD YOU BEST SUMMARIZE YOUR PRACTICE?

The Lu-Jean Feng Clinic is an elegant medical establishment, designed to evoke my ideals of looking good and feeling good from the inside out.

IN WHAT WAYS DO YOU FOCUS ON THE ENTIRE PATIENT?

Surgery is a stress on the body, and it is my obligation and responsibility to know as much about my patients’ health history as possible. I spend approximately two hours with each and every patient learning as much about their health history and lifestyle as possible. My goal is to determine if someone is a good candidate for surgery and if they will have a safe and easy recovery. I don’t stop there. I also want to educate my patients to help them prevent disease and inflammation before it becomes problematic. My certification in Advanced Bio-Identical Hormone Replacement Therapy has broadened my arsenal of preventive tools to offer to my patients.

WHAT IS THE CONCEPT OF BALANCE AND BEAUTY SELF-EVIDENT WITHIN YOUR PRACTICE?

Inner and outer harmony are our primary goals for all patients. My support staff of 38 professionals helps patients achieve a very high level of health and wellness and establish realistic goals when contemplating surgery. The principles of Feng shui are upheld throughout our 15,000-square-foot facility, where soft colors, thoughtful amenities and beautiful, wooded views provide the perfect setting for a relaxing visit. Our state-of-the-art operating and recovery rooms, medical skin-care and laser center, acupuncture and massage rooms, and unique Feng Fitness Center, truly make the clinic one-of-a-kind.

HOW DO YOU SET THE STAGE FOR POST-OPERATIVE RECOVERY?

When I opened my outpatient surgery center, I was required to remain in the facility until the last patient was discharged. This allowed me to see firsthand how uncomfortable patients can be. I found that to be unacceptable. I spent more than a year researching and perfecting ways to minimize post-op nausea and pain. I hired an anesthesiologist to employ a general anesthesia technique using fast-acting IV anesthetics that clear the body within minutes after surgery. My patients began waking up very quickly and without nausea and grogginess.

HOW IMPORTANT IS COMMUNICATION AT YOUR PRACTICE?

Communication is extremely important. I am able to speak fluent English and Mandarin.

HOW WOULD YOU BEST SUMMARIZE YOUR PRACTICE?

The Lu-Jean Feng Clinic is an elegant medical establishment, designed to evoke my ideals of looking good and feeling good from the inside out.

IN WHAT WAYS DO YOU FOCUS ON THE ENTIRE PATIENT?

Surgery is a stress on the body, and it is my obligation and responsibility to know as much about my patients’ health history as possible. I spend approximately two hours with each and every patient learning as much about their health history and lifestyle as possible. My goal is to determine if someone is a good candidate for surgery and if they will have a safe and easy recovery. I don’t stop there. I also want to educate my patients to help them prevent disease and inflammation before it becomes problematic. My certification in Advanced Bio-Identical Hormone Replacement Therapy has broadened my arsenal of preventive tools to offer to my patients.

WHAT IS THE CONCEPT OF BALANCE AND BEAUTY SELF-EVIDENT WITHIN YOUR PRACTICE?

Inner and outer harmony are our primary goals for all patients. My support staff of 38 professionals helps patients achieve a very high level of health and wellness and establish realistic goals when contemplating surgery. The principles of Feng shui are upheld throughout our 15,000-square-foot facility, where soft colors, thoughtful amenities and beautiful, wooded views provide the perfect setting for a relaxing visit. Our state-of-the-art operating and recovery rooms, medical skin-care and laser center, acupuncture and massage rooms, and unique Feng Fitness Center, truly make the clinic one-of-a-kind.

HOW DO YOU SET THE STAGE FOR POST-OPERATIVE RECOVERY?

When I opened my outpatient surgery center, I was required to remain in the facility until the last patient was discharged. This allowed me to see firsthand how uncomfortable patients can be. I found that to be unacceptable. I spent more than a year researching and perfecting ways to minimize post-op nausea and pain. I hired an anesthesiologist to employ a general anesthesia technique using fast-acting IV anesthetics that clear the body within minutes after surgery. My patients began waking up very quickly and without nausea and grogginess.

HOW IMPORTANT IS COMMUNICATION AT YOUR PRACTICE?

Communication is extremely important. I am able to speak fluent English and Mandarin.

HOW WOULD YOU BEST SUMMARIZE YOUR PRACTICE?

The Lu-Jean Feng Clinic is an elegant medical establishment, designed to evoke my ideals of looking good and feeling good from the inside out.

IN WHAT WAYS DO YOU FOCUS ON THE ENTIRE PATIENT?

Surgery is a stress on the body, and it is my obligation and responsibility to know as much about my patients’ health history as possible. I spend approximately two hours with each and every patient learning as much about their health history and lifestyle as possible. My goal is to determine if someone is a good candidate for surgery and if they will have a safe and easy recovery. I don’t stop there. I also want to educate my patients to help them prevent disease and inflammation before it becomes problematic. My certification in Advanced Bio-Identical Hormone Replacement Therapy has broadened my arsenal of preventive tools to offer to my patients.

WHAT IS THE CONCEPT OF BALANCE AND BEAUTY SELF-EVIDENT WITHIN YOUR PRACTICE?

Inner and outer harmony are our primary goals for all patients. My support staff of 38 professionals helps patients achieve a very high level of health and wellness and establish realistic goals when contemplating surgery. The principles of Feng shui are upheld throughout our 15,000-square-foot facility, where soft colors, thoughtful amenities and beautiful, wooded views provide the perfect setting for a relaxing visit. Our state-of-the-art operating and recovery rooms, medical skin-care and laser center, acupuncture and massage rooms, and unique Feng Fitness Center, truly make the clinic one-of-a-kind.

HOW DO YOU SET THE STAGE FOR POST-OPERATIVE RECOVERY?

When I opened my outpatient surgery center, I was required to remain in the facility until the last patient was discharged. This allowed me to see firsthand how uncomfortable patients can be. I found that to be unacceptable. I spent more than a year researching and perfecting ways to minimize post-op nausea and pain. I hired an anesthesiologist to employ a general anesthesia technique using fast-acting IV anesthetics that clear the body within minutes after surgery. My patients began waking up very quickly and without nausea and grogginess.

HOW IMPORTANT IS COMMUNICATION AT YOUR PRACTICE?

Communication is extremely important. I am able to speak fluent English and Mandarin.

HOW WOULD YOU BEST SUMMARIZE YOUR PRACTICE?

The Lu-Jean Feng Clinic is an elegant medical establishment, designed to evoke my ideals of looking good and feeling good from the inside out.

IN WHAT WAYS DO YOU FOCUS ON THE ENTIRE PATIENT?

Surgery is a stress on the body, and it is my obligation and responsibility to know as much about my patients’ health history as possible. I spend approximately two hours with each and every patient learning as much about their health history and lifestyle as possible. My goal is to determine if someone is a good candidate for surgery and if they will have a safe and easy recovery. I don’t stop there. I also want to educate my patients to help them prevent disease and inflammation before it becomes problematic. My certification in Advanced Bio-Identical Hormone Replacement Therapy has broadened my arsenal of preventive tools to offer to my patients.

WHAT IS THE CONCEPT OF BALANCE AND BEAUTY SELF-EVIDENT WITHIN YOUR PRACTICE?

Inner and outer harmony are our primary goals for all patients. My support staff of 38 professionals helps patients achieve a very high level of health and wellness and establish realistic goals when contemplating surgery. The principles of Feng shui are upheld throughout our 15,000-square-foot facility, where soft colors, thoughtful amenities and beautiful, wooded views provide the perfect setting for a relaxing visit. Our state-of-the-art operating and recovery rooms, medical skin-care and laser center, acupuncture and massage rooms, and unique Feng Fitness Center, truly make the clinic one-of-a-kind.

HOW DO YOU SET THE STAGE FOR POST-OPERATIVE RECOVERY?

When I opened my outpatient surgery center, I was required to remain in the facility until the last patient was discharged. This allowed me to see firsthand how uncomfortable patients can be. I found that to be unacceptable. I spent more than a year researching and perfecting ways to minimize post-op nausea and pain. I hired an anesthesiologist to employ a general anesthesia technique using fast-acting IV anesthetics that clear the body within minutes after surgery. My patients began waking up very quickly and without nausea and grogginess.

HOW IMPORTANT IS COMMUNICATION AT YOUR PRACTICE?

Communication is extremely important. I am able to speak fluent English and Mandarin.

HOW WOULD YOU BEST SUMMARIZE YOUR PRACTICE?

The Lu-Jean Feng Clinic is an elegant medical establishment, designed to evoke my ideals of looking good and feeling good from the inside out.

IN WHAT WAYS DO YOU FOCUS ON THE ENTIRE PATIENT?

Surgery is a stress on the body, and it is my obligation and responsibility to know as much about my patients’ health history as possible. I spend approximately two hours with each and every patient learning as much about their health history and lifestyle as possible. My goal is to determine if someone is a good candidate for surgery and if they will have a safe and easy recovery. I don’t stop there. I also want to educate my patients to help them prevent disease and inflammation before it becomes problematic. My certification in Advanced Bio-Identical Hormone Replacement Therapy has broadened my arsenal of preventive tools to offer to my patients.

WHAT IS THE CONCEPT OF BALANCE AND BEAUTY SELF-EVIDENT WITHIN YOUR PRACTICE?

Inner and outer harmony are our primary goals for all patients. My support staff of 38 professionals helps patients achieve a very high level of health and wellness and establish realistic goals when contemplating surgery. The principles of Feng shui are upheld throughout our 15,000-square-foot facility, where soft colors, thoughtful amenities and beautiful, wooded views provide the perfect setting for a relaxing visit. Our state-of-the-art operating and recovery rooms, medical skin-care and laser center, acupuncture and massage rooms, and unique Feng Fitness Center, truly make the clinic one-of-a-kind.

HOW DO YOU SET THE STAGE FOR POST-OPERATIVE RECOVERY?

When I opened my outpatient surgery center, I was required to remain in the facility until the last patient was discharged. This allowed me to see firsthand how uncomfortable patients can be. I found that to be unacceptable. I spent more than a year researching and perfecting ways to minimize post-op nausea and pain. I hired an anesthesiologist to employ a general anesthesia technique using fast-acting IV anesthetics that clear the body within minutes after surgery. My patients began waking up very quickly and without nausea and grogginess.

HOW IMPORTANT IS COMMUNICATION AT YOUR PRACTICE?

Communication is extremely important. I am able to speak fluent English and Mandarin.

HOW WOULD YOU BEST SUMMARIZE YOUR PRACTICE?

The Lu-Jean Feng Clinic is an elegant medical establishment, designed to evoke my ideals of looking good and feeling good from the inside out.

IN WHAT WAYS DO YOU FOCUS ON THE ENTIRE PATIENT?

Surgery is a stress on the body, and it is my obligation and responsibility to know as much about my patients’ health history as possible. I spend approximately two hours with each and every patient learning as much about their health history and lifestyle as possible. My goal is to determine if someone is a good candidate for surgery and if they will have a safe and easy recovery. I don’t stop there. I also want to educate my patients to help them prevent disease and inflammation before it becomes problematic. My certification in Advanced Bio-Identical Hormone Replacement Therapy has broadened my arsenal of preventive tools to offer to my patients.